MEXICAN EMISSARIES FAIL TO SEE PRESIDENT

Reported That Larger Warring Factions in Mexico Agree to Come Together For Peace Discussion.

El Paso, Texas, June 29.—Jose Isabel Robles, minister of war in the cabinet of Eulalio Gutierrez, announced here tonight that the leaders of the two larger warring factions have agreed to discuss terms of peace, perhaps within two weeks.

Cornish, N. H., June 29.—An unsuccessful attempt was made today to arrange an interview here between President Wilson and General Felipe Angeles, the Mexican leader who recently came to the United States and who wants to give the President his view of conditions in Mexico and to suggest a way of meeting Mr. Wilson's warning that the situation there must change.

Col. Jesus M. Aguilar and Major Yreos Aguirre, who said they were members respectively of the staff of General Angeles and Gen. Raul Madero, arrived during the afternoon, bearing letters of introduction from General Madero and General Angeles, but were told that details of the Mexican situation were being handled by the state department at Washington, and that it would be impossible for General Angeles to see the President here.

The two Mexicans denied reports that General Angeles was connected with General Victoriano Huerta in any way. They said that General Angeles and General Villa are still warm friends, and that both would oppose Huerta to the end.

Following their failure to arrange the interview with the President, they notified Villa headquarters in Washington of the result.

According to Aguilar and Garcia both Gen. Angeles and Gen. Villa favor the selection of Pasquies Nagle, the only member of the Madero cabinet who did not resign as provisional president of Mexico. The Villa leaders are hopeful they said that Nagle can be agreed upon and recognized by the United States.

The arrival in this small New England town of the Mexicans, wearing broad brimmed sombreros, caused a flurry of excitement. They said they had come directly from Boston where they had met General Angeles. After learning that their mission here was a failure they said they would return to Washington in the near future to report to General Angeles.

The visitors were told that they could leave their letters and that the President would get them but they decided to take them to Washington. They declared that strong efforts are being made by the Villa leaders to bring about an agreement between the different factions, but said that Gen. Carranza would not negotiate with Villa.

The President worked most of the day on correspondence forwarded to him by Washington. Messages from several cabinet members were received but it was said tonight that none of them was important. Particular attention was given to reports from Berlin that the German reply to the first American note on submarine warfare would be favorable but the President would make no comment pending the receipt of the reply itself.

Secretary Lansing let the President know he could be reached in Amherst, Mass., during the day but Mr. Wilson did not find it necessary to communicate with him. It was said definitely tonight that there was no plan to have Secretary Lansing come here.

Late this afternoon the President, with Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Helen Woodrow Hones and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, took a 50 mile automobile ride to Lake Sunapee, New Hampshire. During the ride they passed by Cornish Park, a reserve for deer and buffalo, and the President saw several deer leap into the forest as the automobile whirled by. Tomorrow morning the President will play golf at Hanover.

Half of the year of 1915 has gone.

GERMANS SINK TWO MORE NEUTRAL SHIPS

Crews of Both Vessels Are Taken Aboard the Submarine -- French Cruiser Sinks Fourteen Ships in the Dardanelles

(Special to The Herald)

London, June 30.—Two more neutral ships, both of Norwegian nationality, have been sunk by German submarines. They were the Cambuskenneth, which sailed from Portland, Ore., Feb. 29, for Liverpool, and the Gjeso.

Thirteen members of the crew of the former ship were landed, and eight others, all German subjects, were taken on board the submarine, which was the U-39. The members of the Gjeso's crew landed at North Shields.

(Special to The Herald)

Athens, June 30.—A cruiser from the Anglo-French fleet at the Dardanelles shelled the Turkish oil ammunitions depot at Lidia, near Chesmeh, on Monday, completely destroying it. Then the ship entered Chesmeh Gulf and shelled the lighthouse, destroying it and sank fourteen ships. Before steaming away the cruiser bombarded the trenches of the Turkish troops.

GERMAN NOTE WILL BE OF FRIENDLY CHARACTER
(Special to The Herald)

Paris, June 30.—Telegraphing from the Hague, the Dutch capital states that Germany's reply to the American note on submarine warfare will be of a friendly character, but that it will refuse to abandon the campaign of its underwater craft.

"The German reply will be very moderate," says the correspondent, "protesting against Germany's friendship for the United States; Germany will declare that she means as far as possible to respect the interests of neutrals and the lives of neutral passengers, but will not renounce her submarine warfare. The reply will contain excuses for the destruction of the Lusitania, which was decreed on the strength of erroneous information, but Germany will insist that it is absolutely necessary to continue all available means to fight the British blockade. Germany will also contend that attacks against submarines by merchant ships, particularly against the U-23, justifies the continuation of its submarine warfare."

fellow countryman.

The police went to the scene in an auto and brought in both Peters to try and get a clear line on the affair. Both passed the night at the station, and felt better. Marchuk held a conference with Stokol and he (Marchuk) then declared that Stokol was an honest man and that the $150 he thought was stolen, had been lost behind a barn during the celebration. They shook hands and left the police headquarters to engage in a search for the missing money.

PRESIDENT WILL PRESS THE BUTTON

And Officially Open Wilson Day at the San Francisco Exposition.

(Special to The Herald)

Cornish, N. H., June 30.—President Wilson's automobile had a narrow escape from being attacked while carrying the national executive to the golf links today. The car had to swerve suddenly to avoid a collision with a heavy lumber wagon and the wheels skidded.

The President will press a button tomorrow officially opening Wilson Day at the San Francisco Exposition. The spark flashed across the continent by the compact of the President's finger will unfurl flags and start the celebration at the Golden Gate. There will be no ceremony here.

GERMAN TROOPS MAKE FIERCE ATTACK

Paris, Jun 30.—German troops made a fierce attack at two o'clock this morning under cover of darkness in an effort to recapture the position won by the French east of Metzlar in the Vosges, but were repulsed, according to an official statement issued today. There was also infantry fighting in the region north of Arras, but the French were successful in the operations that took place there during the night.

U. S. SUBMARINE IS STILL HOLDING TOGETHER

Hopes Are Entertained That Submarine H3 Will Be Floated at High Tide This Afternoon.

(Special to The Herald)

San Francisco, June 30.—The United States submarine H-3, which went ashore five miles south of Point San Tuesday night, was still holding together early today, according to a wireless message received at Mare Island. The message stated that unless she was pounded upon the rocks too violently during this morning, she would be floated out safely at high tide early this afternoon.

In a dense fog the H-3, which was two hours ahead of its convoy, the submarine Cheyenne, left its course on the way from San Diego to San Francisco, and struck on the rocks. The Cheyenne approached near enough to reach the submarine and Lieut. William P. Newton, commander of the submarine, reported that the frame of the craft was undamaged and she appeared to be resting on an easy base without pounding to any extent. Nineteen men and Lieut. Newton are aboard the H-3.

DUTCH LINER DAMAGED WHILE AT ANCHOR

Several Americans Are Numbered in Her Passenger List.

(Special to The Herald)

Dover, Eng., June 30.—The Dutch liner Nieuw Amsterdam, bound for the United States from Rotterdam, but held up by the British in the Downs, was rammed by another vessel while at anchor early today. The liner, a vessel of 10,330 tons, was badly damaged.

Among the several hundred passengers aboard her are a number of Americans.

LOSS OF LIFE CAUSED BY WIND STORM

Property Damage in Northern Mississippi Estimated at $250,000.

(Special to The Herald)

Memphis, Tenn., June 30.—Four persons are known to have been drowned and damage estimated at $250,000 resulted from a wind and rain storm that swept northern Mississippi along the Mississippi river last night.

NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT

Every successful gown and dress shown in the fashion displays this year absolutely demands a corset to set it off.

The so-called "corsetless" figure has passed. Dress this year demands a shaped waist line and flat silhouette in front and back, and this is not possible without a corset.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

show every feature necessary for current styles.

Fashionable bust heights run slightly higher than a year ago, but are well goared to support the upper figure without confining it. Skirts are a trifle shorter and the waist line gives indications of a fitted snugness. Yet the garment is comfortable and easy as you wish.

THERE IS NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT

for selecting your Warner's Corset. Our stock is complete with varied models for every type of figure. May we expect a visit today?

WEDDING GUESTS IN RAILROAD ACCIDENT

Several Suffer Slight Scratches But None Seriously Hurt.

(Special to The Herald)

Bowling Green, Mo., June 30.—A number of guests to the wedding of Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, and James M. Thompson of New Orleans, who were on the Chicago and Alton railway train from Kansas City which was derailed at Perryville, seven miles from here last night, arrived in Bowling Green early today. Several of them had suffered slight scratches but none were seriously hurt.

GERMAN FORCES PENETRATE INTO RUSSIAN POLAND

Teutons Invade Russian Territory North of Lemberg--Make Gains in Alsace--Italians Will Aid Against Turks

Berlin (via London), June 29.—The official statement given out today by the German army headquarters staff announces that to the north of Lemberg the Austro-German forces are now on Russian territory.

TEUTON LOSES 7,000,000

Petrograd, June 29.—The Russian armies are neither beaten nor downhearted, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Times, reviewing the six weeks' Teutonic advances, after a visit to Russian headquarters. General Ivanoff, commander of the Southern armies, shows no trace of despondency. The correspondent says: "The view is held here that their capture of Lemberg and other Galician successes have brought the Austro-Germans no nearer a solution of the war. In spite of their enormous losses, which are estimated at 380,000 Germans and probably an equal number of Austrians, they still encounter the same stubborn army as before, which is willing to keep fighting for years if necessary. The Germans must continue pouring in fresh troops in order to hold their positions, for if they take them away to defend other frontiers the whole edifice of the Austrian defensive will collapse. The Russian point of view is, that they can retreat and advance again indefinitely, caring little for the moral effect of the loss of towns as long as they are constantly weakening their adversaries and preventing a trench deadlock such as exists on the Western and Warsaw fronts."

RUSSIANS HAMMER THE TEUTON LEFT

Petrograd, June 29.—The following official communication was issued by the War Office last night: "On the left bank of the Vistula a stubborn battle in the Owarow (Poland) district continued throughout the night of June 28-29, when the enemy was everywhere repulsed, suffering great losses. The attacks against the town of Glinarow were particularly desperate. In the course of our counter attacks here we took prisoners belonging to all the regiments of the Austrian Fourth Division. "The enemy's advance on Ponnachoff (Ponnasow?), Belz and Klamonka (in Galicia north of Lemberg) continues."

MOVE EAST OF LEMBERG

Vienna (via London), June 29.—The following Austrian official statement was given out here last night: "The Teutonic troops in Eastern Galicia in pursuit of the Russians reached on Sunday, during heavy rear-guard battles northeast of Lemberg, the region of Kladzhenko and Zadworec. "Halicz is now in our possession."

The southern bank of the Dniester river above Halicz is free from the enemy. After five days of stubborn fighting the allied troops in General von Linsingen's army succeeded in forcing the river crossing. The remainder of the Dniester front is calm. "Archduke Joseph Ferdinand's troops on Sunday stormed Blazow, southwest of Napol, and pierced during the night hostile positions on the heights northeast of Blazow. The Russians are retreating to Napol."

Miss Edith Raitt of Dover formerly of Eliot was a recent visitor in town.

Mr. Charles Smith substituted for Mr. J. L. Buck during the latter's absence.

The Coal Company and the Button Company teams battle this evening. It should be a good game as both teams are going well.

SCENES FROM THE LIFE OF THE FAR WEST

Scenes from the life of the Far West both past and present, are, it is announced, accentuated in the performance of Miller Bros. and Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West show, which Portsmouth will have an opportunity to see, in conjunction with Jess Willard, the cowboy world's champion and his company of sparsers, on Saturday, July 10. Willard of course, is the much-discussed and much-heralded offering of the season, and easily ranks first among the interest arousing features of the big show. Willard is a cowboy by training and instinct, and in the 101 Ranch show he is simply getting back to first principles. He will be seen in an announced, at both performances in this city, first in his original role as a cowboy, and later in a boxing bout with one of his sparring partners and in ring costume, when he will illustrate just how he gave Jack Johnson the knockout blow that gave the Kansan the world's championship.

Among the other offerings made possible by a big congress of cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans and other Wild West people is an attack on a pioneer's train of a "prairie schooner" by Sioux Indians, led by Chief Iron Tail, whose war experiences date back to the Custer battle and whose profile adorns the new "Buffalo" nickel; the capture and punishment of a horse thief, according to the summary code of the early days of the frontier; a stage coach holdup in which a big bunch of Mexicans are utilized; the pony express, showing how the mail was carried by means of relays of fast horses; a buffalo hunt, illustrating the Indian method of stalking the wild bison; Indian sun, green corn, ghost and war dances, led by the great Sioux medicine man, Lone Wolf; a round up of long horned cattle, in which the skill of the cowboys and incidentally, Jess Willard both as horseman and in handling the lariet is shown; rough riding by cowboys and no less daring cowgirls and other exhilarating events. One of this season's novelties is a "silk hat tournament," in which a bunch of cowboys, mounted, wearing high hats and armed with short riding whips, try to knock off the "titles" of their adversaries. For the purpose of the broncho busting contests, fifty wild horses have, it is announced, recently arrived from the 101 Ranch at Bliss, Oklahoma.

There will be two performances at 2.45 and 8.05, preceded by a characteristic Wild West parade at 10.30 in the morning.

STOLE BARREL OF GIN.

Joseph W. Ash and George Denoncourt of Manchester have been held for high court for stealing a barrel of gin valued at $73.80 from the wholesale store of Joseph Quinn.

It is alleged that the men saw the barrel near the rear doorway and while Denoncourt kept watch, Ash rolled the barrel into the back street, past police headquarters until it was well away from the store, when they got a horse and wagon and conveyed it to East Manchester, where the barrel was tapped and its contents rapidly depleted.

Portsmouth, N. H., Wednesday, June 30, 1915.

The Same Old World.

Many and profound are the predictions regarding the results of the European war. Some go so far as to predict that the old forms of government will be done away with and that republicanism will take the place of monarchical government, while others are talking about a world state that shall include all the civilized countries under the sun, with world-wide and permanent peace as the outcome.

In an address before the graduating class of the high school at Schenectady, N. Y., a few days ago Elmer Barnes of Philadelphia, a member of the faculty of the Chautauqua summer school, had something to say on the changes which he thinks are to be brought about by the war. After telling the members of the class that they were graduating in the most remarkable year in all human history and saying that "compared with the year 1914-1915 the fall of Rome or the discovery of America will be insignificant in future history," he proceeded to point out some of the problems and duties that lie ahead of them. He said: "To you will come tremendous problems of readjustment after this war is done. The nations of the earth will be bankrupted. Vast changes must take place, not only in methods of finance, but in government, art, literature, and in our understanding of human values. You are the ones who must shape the new earth."

But the fact is that there will be no new earth to shape. It will be the same old world after the war that it was before and human nature will remain unchanged. The nations involved in the struggle will resume the duties and works of peace and proceed to make up for the gigantic losses incurred, and it is to be presumed that this task will be sufficient to keep them at peace for many years to come, although with the general rapidity of the age recovery from the effects of war may be expected to take place much sooner than in the old days.

There is no reason to look for a new earth or a general overturning of the ways of the world, or the governments of the nations. Before the war began it was contended that civilization had reached a point which rendered war on a large scale practically impossible, and it was also claimed that if there were a disposition to fight the financial interests of the world would make war impossible by refusing to furnish the funds.

Those predictions look very sorry in the light of events of the past year, and predictions that the war is to revolutionize the world and its ways will in all probability look equally ridiculous in the not distant future. This is going to be the same old world after the present trouble is over.

Four young men who were graduated from Williams college a few days ago are to make their way to the San Francisco exposition in an automobile truck, which will furnish both transportation and lodging. Like an army they will subsist on the regions traversed, but will make due returns for value received. It will be a novel trip, and if there is any "literary feller" in the company he ought to be able to turn out a readable book on it.

It is estimated that the money spent by American tourists abroad ordinarily amounts to about $100,000,000 a year, and because of the war most of this cash will be kept at home this year. This ought to do something toward stimulating business at home and offsetting the shrinkage of revenue on imports.

Ex-President Taft objects to "muckerism" in university sports and athletics, and there are those who object to it in politics. It would be a good thing if it could be done away with in all things, but to do this will be a difficult task so long as there are so many "muckers" on the census rolls.

It is reported that England has been bluffing Germany on the size of the British army. But Germany has not attempted to bluff anybody on the size and efficiency of its army. It has "shown the goods" right from the start.

"Our country is our mother," said a public speaker in Boston the other day. But in this "melting pot of the world" there are many who might, perhaps, more properly regard it as their step-mother.

It must be that the times are even harder than the alarmists have represented. A plumber in an eastern town has gone into bankruptcy. That's pretty close to the limit.

W. J. Bryan is being urged to stump New England for prohibition. If he does this he should begin in Maine and teach the grangers how to make prohibition prohibitive.

The boys, and many of their elders also, are preparing for a proper celebration of the G. F.

ALABAMA GOES DRY TONIGHT

The "Last Jags" Are Expected to Become More Boisterous Tonight.

Birmingham, Ala., June 30—After trying prohibition for four years and then limited saloons for four years, this state will again become totally dry upon the stroke of midnight tonight. No longer will the six counties in which liquor is now sold be oases in the grape juice desert of Alabama.

The counties affected are Jefferson, Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery, Pike, Madison and Colbert. One dispensary and approximately 135 saloons will close.

Although extra police precautions were taken to prevent any disorder in the wake of the liquor corps, the officers had little to do during the early part of the day. However, the last jags are expected to become more boisterous tonight.

Many of the liquor dealers are bitter against the law which puts them out of business, while others accept the situation philosophically. None of them express the belief that they will be permitted to open again in the state.

The law which makes Alabama totally dry was passed about six months ago by the legislature and allowed the liquor men until tonight to get their affairs in shape to go out of business.

Along with this law, measures were also passed prohibiting the advertising of liquor within the state and making it unlawful for express or railroad companies to accept shipments to firms or individuals in excess of two quarts every thirty days. These bills were designed to prevent the state being flooded with literature and wet goods by mail order houses outside the jurisdiction of Alabama courts. Both measures have been upheld by the courts.

Many of the saloons add a rushing business today, thirsty patrons laying in as large a supply as possible for the dry months ahead.

The business was not as brisk however as anticipated, as the word had gone abroad that a good part of the so-called whiskey being sold was merely concocted stuff manufactured in the backrooms of the saloons in order to reap greater profits on the last day's business.

One old timer was heard to remark, "that it is all a man's life is worth to take a drink of the chemical whiskey they are selling now."

The anti-advertising law led many of the liquor men to resort to ingenious schemes to get their wares before the public. One of them employing a corner, had a huge sign painted covering the entire side of his place of business. Box car letters informed passersby that "the courts will not let us advertise what we have inside, but we have plenty of it cheap."

Another saloonist named August Meyer, displayed a sign reading: "The first of July will be the last of August. Prepare for a cold wave in December."

AT GERRISH ISLAND.
Boy Scouts of Haverhill Will Enjoy Camp Life.

Twenty-five Boy Scouts from the North Congregational church of Haverhill, together with Scoutmasters Derbyshire and Edward R. Hale, arrived at Gerrish Island, Kittery Point, Tuesday for a week's camping trip on the island.

Sidney Chase, the artist of Haverhill was also in the party. While here the boys will enjoy scout drills, signal work, boating, fishing, swimming and hundreds of other things dear to the youngsters.

FREE TRIPS TO NOVA SCOTIA AND THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

In order to obtain extensive mailing lists and stimulate an interest in travel to the Maritime Provinces the Eastern Steamship Corporation and Yarmouth Line announce six free trips to the Provinces including everything such as transportation, hotels, etc. The only condition of the offer is that these trips will be given by each line to the five persons sending in the largest number of names and addresses of persons and descendants now living in the Maritime Provinces. The lists to be sent not later than Aug. 15th and trips available Sept. 1st.

This is a rare opportunity to obtain a delightful vacation trip absolutely free by entering the contest at once and getting the co-operation of your friends.

The first winners will receive round trip to the principal cities in the Maritime Provinces. The second round trip to Halifax, and the third round trip to Digby.

The decision as to largest lists, and the winners, will be decided on by the following committee: Frederic A. Tupper, President of the Canadian Club of Boston; Richard E. Johnston, Vice-President of the Intercolonial Club; Thomas F. Anderson, Secretary of New England Shoe and Leather Association.

FREE TRADE AND PROTECTION

The one place where these two issues meet in perfect harmony is in the advertisements of your daily paper. Bids for patronage in an open and above board manner is the freest kind of free trade. And working with it at all times in protection for the customers. For the advertising is invariably the guide to square dealing. Advertising that would lead one anywhere else would be silly and unprofitable.

DRUGGISTS ENJOYING THEMSELVES

New Officers Are Elected by New Hampshire Association.

The members of the New Hampshire Pharmaceutical Association, who are at the Hotel Wentworth for a two days outing are being favored with ideal weather conditions and the members of the Association and their ladies are having the time of their life.

At ten o'clock this Wednesday morning the annual election of officers was held with the following choice:

President, B. T. Porter of Ashland. Vice Presidents, George W. Boardman, Portsmouth; W. R. Brown, Pittsfield.

Secretary, Eugene Sullivan, Concord.

Treasurer, S. Howard Bell, Derry.

Auditor, John H. Marshall, Manchester.

Executive Committee, Goodwin B. Chubbick, Portsmouth; Joseph LeBlanc, Manchester; Eugene Sullivan, Concord.

The Travelling Men's Auxiliary chose the following officers:

President, G. W. Kenniston, Lawrence.

Vice Presidents, D. J. MacDougall, Lowell; R. E. McLaren, Everett.

Secretary and Treasurer, John McGrath, Boston.

Executive Committee, F. E. Horgan, Cambridge; John H. Purcell, Dorchester.

Following the business session the party was photographed, after which they visited Fols Stark and Constitution.

PUTTING BACK SHORT LOBSTERS

The union of the lobster fishermen along the York county coast which has been in the forming for some weeks has been perfected and went into effect on Tuesday all those signing the agreement returned the shorls by which it meant the lobsters below legal size, to the water.

While this is true of the greater part of the York county coast, it is not literally true of the whole, as fishermen at Biddeford Pool have not yet signed the agreement nor has the matter been completed at York. But there is no doubt that they will be generally signed in those places. Agreements were forwarded to the points today and it is said the committee has been assured that all but two at York Beach will sign, while it is thought the matter will be practically unanimous at the Pool. The fishermen evidently realize that in some such action lies the only salvation of their business and they are taking hold of it with alacrity.

The idea is to have all lobster fishermen sign the agreement to put back all short lobsters, that is, all such less than 10 1/2 inches long, the legal length in this state. In the three districts, which include Cape Porpoise, Kennebunkport and the Wilds district, all but two fishermen have signed the agreement. In these districts a committee has been appointed to see that the agreement is lived up to.

These conditions are in effect, a committee of safety to see that the agreement is lived up to and also to keep an eye on those who have refused to sign the agreement. Should any be found breaking the agreement the committee will inform the fish wardens. In this way it is believed the taking of short lobsters can be reduced to a minimum.

EVOLUTION OF A GOLF BALL

New York, June 30—From pebbles, to feathers, to gutta percha to rubber core—that's the history of the evolution of a golf ball.

Pack in the dense old days that are dead embalmed and probably petrified, the gruff persons used to swing a round pebble. Every swing used to produce a sting that was telegraphed along the shaft of the club to the milts of the golfer. A sting causes pain and pain usually provokes profanity.

In the day and age the clerical persons are inclined to look with horror upon the average golfer because he causes ever and anon. They think it's the golfer's fault and his individual sin. But it isn't. The golfer can't help causing because it's hereditary. The causing habit has come down from his causing ancestors. A fellow can't duck hereditarily, can he?

Well, along about 1652 A. D. a golfing geometer, of an inventive turn of mind, decided to quit causing. Probably he was nearing the end of life and was repentant. So he invented the feather ball as the one way of playing velvety without risking the chance of getting a job in the hereafter under

CURRENT OPINION

Inhalation of Tobacco Smoke a Serious Menace to American Mentality and Health.

Smoking cigarettes does more harm than all the other drugs put together. That habit is the greatest menace to American mentality and morality.

The smoker in search of a stimulant turns to nicotine. The effects of inhaling tobacco are threefold—first, certative; second, depressive, and third, irritative. Morally, cigarette smoking makes a man undependable. He finds it easier to do things when under the influence of nicotine—things he once thought were wrong.

The abuse of tobacco is the cause of seventy per cent of drink habit cases. The effect of depression following close upon exhilaration for the cigarette fiend is accelerated by a lot of poisons and depressants other than nicotine—prussic acid, carbonic acid, coal tar gases, illuminating gas and the deadly formaldehyde. There is as much of this last mentioned poison in one cigarette as there is in two ounces of whiskey, which is a pretty big drink.

When a man smokes twenty cigarettes a day he is taking as much whiskey as the man who drinks two and a half pints.—By Dr. John D. Quackenbos, Expert on Mental Diseases.

the boss rule of a party named Luffer.

The feather ball, a few samples of which are still alive, but returned to museums and curio collections, was about the same size as the golf ball of today and a trifle heavier. It was made thusly: The strips of leather, which serve as the cover, were sewed together. A small space was left unsewed. This enabled the maker to turn the cover side out so as to get the rough stitching inside.

Having been turned inside out, the ball was ready for stuffing. Feathers were jammed into the opening and packed with a sharp stick. A two quart measure of feathers usually was required to stuff one of those golf balls. One feather isn't a dangerous weapon. A half bushel of feathers loosely packed aren't dangerous, but two quarts of feathers jammed into a space the size of a golf ball is something else again. The feather ball, in those days, when properly propelled, could have knocked out Jess Willard should he slick his concrete jaw in its feathery path.

The feather ball continued in force until about 1840. Then a Scot badly revolutionized things again. He found a discarded football shoe that had a gutta percha sole. Business was poor that day and not having any wood to whittle he carved away on the sole. After a time it struck him that the sole might be rolled together and made into a ball.

The endy soaked the sole, rolled it together, tied it with a string and went golfing with it the next day. He got some great distances on his drives, the golfers took cognizance of it and the gutta percha ball came into existence.

The best part of the gutta percha affair was that its cost was only one-tenth of that of a feather one. The next best feature was that the wind didn't hamper the flight of the gutta percha affair, as sometimes was the case with the feather ball.

It was in 1893 that the rubber covered ball came into existence in the face of the free and the neutral went into raptures about his great improvement on it.

MISS CLARK MARRIES PUBLISHER

Ceremony Takes Place at the Clark Home, Honesuckle,
This Afternoon.

Bowling Green, Mo., June 30—Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Speaker Clark of the National House of Representatives, and James M. Thompson publisher of the New Orleans Item will be married at the Clark Home, Honesuckle, this afternoon.

The rose garden is the place chosen for the ceremony and the guests will gather there at four o'clock. The Rev. Robert Sherman Boyd, whose wife is a cousin of Miss Clark will officiate.

Mr. Clark will give his daughter in marriage. She will have eight attendants. Paul Thompson will be his brother's best man.

Individual invitations were not sent out for the wedding, but instead the Speaker gave a general invitation to all Missourians to attend. There was an enormous crowd at Honesuckle, which taxed the extensive grounds surrounding the Clark mansion.

The display of wedding presents attracted much attention. President Wilson sent two silver compotes; Pike county, Mo., a silver service; Bowling Green, a chest of flat silver; Minority leader James R. Mann of the House of Representatives, who has known the bride-elect since her childhood, a wonderful old ostrich fan and bed room in the Mann family.

The members of the House of Representatives gave the bride a magnificent necklace of diamonds, with a large pear-shaped pendant; Mrs. Samuel D. V. Sneath, vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, a set of cut glass; and Dr. and Mrs. David Jayne Hill, a silver card tray.

Mr. and Mrs. R. William Randolph Hearst's gift was two silver dishes, while Representative J. Thompson Baker of New Jersey sent a silver bread tray.

POLICE NOTICE.

The attention of citizens is hereby called to the following notice. The discharge of firearms of any description within the described area, to note: From Market Square through Market street to foot of Hanover, through Daniel to Penhallow, through Pleasant to State, through Congress to Middle, from Pleasant on State to Middle, Jenkins avenue from Pleasant street to South street, is positively prohibited at all times.

The discharge of any sort of fireworks in any other part of the city of Portsmouth before 12 o'clock Sunday night, July 4, 1915, is also prohibited.

Any person violating this order will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.
Per order,
MICHAEL HURLEY,
City Marshal.

PURITY

The ingredients of the food you eat and give your children should be pure and healthful beyond any question.

Various food officials and pure food experts have frequently endorsed Royal Baking Powder as being superior to all other similar preparations, and many of the great chemists of the world, including most of those of official position, have given like testimony.

No other article of food has ever received such emphatic commendation for purity, strength and wholesomeness, from the most eminent authorities, as Royal Baking Powder.

Because Royal Baking Powder adds only healthful qualities to the food is one of the reasons why it is always preferred by teachers of cookery and the medical profession.

KEENE COUPLE ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

Deliberation of Jury Lasted
Only One Half Hour.

Keene, N. H. June 29—Felix Buchanowski and Dominick Salewski, who have been on trial here since June 24 charged with the murder of Frank Salewski, the woman's husband were found not guilty tonight by a jury, after a deliberation of one half hour.

After the verdict was announced and the jury excused, the respondents shook hands with the jurors, and a number who were present in the court room gathered about them to grasp their hands.

Buchanowski left the courtroom with his counsel and is to remain with his brother, Mrs. Salewski returned to the jail for the night and will leave in the morning.

The couple was charged with poisoning Salewski.

This morning Joseph Madden, senior counsel for Buchanowski, finished his closing plea. It was followed by John B. Atten, senior counsel for Mrs. Salewski. He finished with his plea just before the noon recess. At the opening of the afternoon session Atty. General James P. Tuttle of Manchester, commenced his summary of the case for the state, and Judge Kivels' charge to the jurors followed.

The court room was filled during the entire day, many being required to stand in the gallery. This has been the longest murder trial held in this county for years.

HOBOS IN CAMP.

Looked Like Old Home Week at the Creek on Tuesday.

It looked like "Old Home" week with the hobo fraternity on Tuesday at the West End. At one time nearly twenty of them who arrived at different periods via Boston and Maine freight, were in convention and enjoying the shade of the big tree off Bartlett street near the car barn, conducting a deep discussion on the European war; the up to date method of avoiding work, and box car transportation. The presence of several tin cans was prima facie evidence that they had been rushing the "dick" and that seat had been served as part of the liquid refreshments during the open air banquet. In the midst of the festivities Officer Anderson appeared.

Mrs. James De Lancy of Hampton was a visitor here today.

LAMONT-WOOD WEDDING BRILLIANT SOCIAL EVENT

Popular Portsmouth Girl Became Bride of Connecticut Man Last Evening

In the presence of a large number of her friends in this city and other places, Miss Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wood, became the bride of Robert Lawrence Lamont, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Lamont of Manchester, Conn., last evening. It was one of the most brilliant weddings of the season as the bride has a host of friends and was one of the leaders in the social life of the city.

The ceremony was performed at six o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 415 South Road, by the Rev. Alfred Gooding, in a room literally banked with gold baskets filled with mountain laurel.

Miss Wood was beautifully gowned in a dress of chiffon satin trimmed with dutch lace, and was attended by Miss Dorothy H. Adams of this city and Mrs. Robert C. Adams of Port Wayne, Ind., a classmate of Miss Wood at Wellesley, 1909, as bridesmaids. The two bridesmaids made a pretty appearance, being gowned alike in pink and blue flowered crepe velour cloth dresses with charming lace aprons, and carrying large bouquets of white sweet peas. The bride was also attended by Mrs. Gordon M. Campbell, acting as matron of honor.

Mr. Lamont was attended by his brother, Clarence R. Lamont, as his best man; Benjamin Lamont, a nephew of the groom, acted as ring bearer. He was dressed in a white silk suit.

E. P. Miller of South Manchester, Conn., and K. A. Wood of Lynn, Mass., acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held by the bride couple, assisted by their parents and the members of the wedding party. After the reception a luncheon was served to the guests, catered for by the management of the Buckingham Hotel, under the direction of Mr. Puttee. The menu consisted of chicken salad, lobster salad, sweet bread croquettes, sandwiches, olives, cakes, ices and punch. The bride was the recipient of many costly and beautiful presents from her many friends, which showed to some extent the esteem in which she is held. The gift of the groom to the bride was a beautiful pearl pendant and the groom received a set of pearl links from the bride. The bride presented her bridesmaids with pearl pins; and the groom's presents to the best man and ushers were gold pocket knives.

The bride's traveling gown was of blue bengaline. The couple left soon after the reception for Boston and after a few days' stop they will continue to their new home on Cambridge street, Manchester, Conn., where the groom has the position of investigator at the Cheney Silk Mills.

Among the out of town guests were: Miss Jean Edwards of Covey Hill, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Dean of Wichita, Kan.; Mrs. John L. Racy of Montreal; Mrs. Raymond of Wallingford; Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Lamont; Mr. O. A. Horner of Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Perkins of Manchester; Mrs. George Warren of Manchester; Mrs. Alice Montgomery of Manchester; Mr. Ernest Racy of Montreal; Mrs. Horner and Miss Elizabeth Horner of Danvilleburg, Md.; Miss Constance, Master John and Master Benjamin Lamont of Wallingford; Mr. Donald Page and Mr. Howard Stevens of Malden; Miss Jennie Demeritt of Dover; Mrs. Mary S. Barnes of Hallow's Falls; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thaxter of Clifton, Mass.; Mrs. James Ronick of Concord; Miss Beatrice and Miss Mildred Horne of Lowell.

SAYS ITALY WILL HELP

Paris, June 29.—Announcement was made at the French Ministry of War yesterday that, according to the Italian press, Italy has broken diplomatic relations with Turkey. Italy, it is added, will send troops to the Dardanelles. The news has been received here with much satisfaction, although there has been no official announcement from Rome regarding Italy's plans.

GAINS WEST OF LAKE GARDA

Rome, June 29.—Despite the Austrian reinforcements along the whole frontier the Italians have entered the Austrian territory south of Riva, on the Notia VII Passes, about 5000 feet high, descended the precipitous cliffs of Carone Mountain over 8000 feet in height, entered the Ledro Valley and reached the Ponale river. The Ponale river runs for five miles from Lake Ledro, which has an altitude of 2000 feet, to the shore of Lake Garda, whose altitude is 700 feet. This river has waterfalls at which is produced the electricity used at Riva, the only important town on Lake Garda in the hands of the Austrians. The same electricity is used by the Austrians for charging their wire entanglements.

The Italians, it is reported, reached a spot near Bezzecca, where, in 1865, the Garibaldians defeated the Austrians. Thus the Italians occupied part of the road excavated in rock, uniting Riva with Storo and Brescia. This road was finished in 1851, and is one of the best examples of its kind existing. On the mountains dominating this road, a short distance from Riva, Austria has constructed a whole system of fortifications, the strongest being those on the Rocchetta and Orapicchi, which are some 5000 feet high.

The bombardment of Malborghetto continues. This laconic phrase has been repeated daily since the bombardment of the Austrian positions west of Tarvis began on June 12. To understand its meaning one must realize that the struggle is occurring in the very heart of precipitous mountains, which rise between the Italian and Austrian block-titanic wall. The work accomplished by the Italians in this region is described by the head of the French military mission as excellent. A special road has been built for the transportation of artillery to the peaks for the bombardment of Malborghetto. Donkeys and mules were used for carrying the guns, ammunition and provisions, and 1000 mountaineers, and even women, climbed the heights with packs on their shoulders. When everything was ready, the Austrians bombarded the road and made the Italian positions untenable. The Italian gunners then decided to bombard Malborghetto by parachute fire and placed their batteries behind the mountains where the Austrians could not see them.

With the assistance of signalers on top of the mountain the Italian gunners, in the presence of King Victor Emmanuel, and the members of the British military mission, began a bombardment of the position. The first shot fell 500 yards wide, but the second went very near and struck what the Italians call Austria's Thermopylae.

The following Italian official war statement was given out here last night: "In Carnia, mountain artillery was transported with difficulty to a summit and used effectively on the enemy's camp on the other side of Val Piccola. The enemy's aeroplanes are becoming active, positions recently conquered being bombarded but generally with slight result."

JOSEPHUS

One Josephus was the navy chief. And this in substance was his belief: A navy small and kept well in hand. Need have no fear from a foreign land. He labored hard and he strove his best.

For the one idea which him possessed; He made it ever his only aim. And in its defense all found him game. And no persuasion of his colleagues. And no entreaty and no intrigues. Could swerve him from what he thought was right.

That a fleet when small could not invite Attack from others that powerful were. Was always his logic cold and bare. And the witty chiefs at his finger tips. Kept safely his little fleet of ships. They were unsafe, said he to go. To sea lest they catch the undertow.

The naval arm he thought strong enough. And could stay in-shore when the sea was rough. From time to time he would recommend A unit here and one there to mend. The ravages which the years would leave. Which was little more than a make-believe.

Addition to the diminutive Sea power which needed more strength to live. He frowned on anything that pertained To a greater fleet; always refrained From any discussion which might tend The chain of his theories to rend.

As he was born in an inland state, His nautical lore was far from great. For ships indeed, he but little cared. This predilection he freely aired. 'Twas common talk of the average oft That he for the job was too unfit. While he tried to show that a little fleet

A twofold purpose would always meet. 'Twould be immune from attack; likewise 'Twould teach the State to economize.

THE BOY FARMER

Or a Member of the Corn Club
By ASA PATRICK

Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.

"Well, there you have it in a nutshell," said Mr. Burns. "You broke shallow, Mr. Fagan, didn't barrow and plowed twice. Sam broke deep, barrowed twice and plowed four times. Furthermore, you'll plow yours only once more. Sam'll plow his two or three times more. That's what makes the difference in the corn. That's why he'll gather a whole lot more to the acre than you."

"That's right, Miles," said Bill Googe. "He's telling it straight. It can't be no other way. I been seedin' it for some time, and I'm changin' my way. We been layin' by crops when they wasn't more'n half made. I didn't more'n scratch my hand to begin with, but you bet I'm plowin' shallow and lots of it. Sam don't know it, but I been watchin' him, and I'm givin' my crops the same medicine he does."

"Yes, there's somethin' in your way of farmin'," Fagan confessed. "I've been dead wrong, and I'll jess own up. I've talked pretty cross to you once or twice, Mr. Burns, and I want to apologize for it. I was a mumbler to act that way. Next year I'm goin' to follow your advice, and I want my boy to fine the corn club and learn as much as he can. I treated him mean this year, and I'm sorry I done it."

"That's all right, Mr. Fagan," said the agent. "I'm real glad you see things my way, for I want to help every farmer in this community. That's all I'm here for, in fact."

CHAPTER V.

THE spring and summer—in fact, the whole year was a very busy one for Sam. And it was not less so for Florence and Mrs. Powell. Florence often helped her brother when the work crowded, and Mrs. Powell put in all her spare time in the garden, melen patch and orchard.

On the contest acre Sam was forced to do all the work himself. The rules were strict on this point, and after Sam's patch had been laid off and measured by a committee he himself planted the corn and no one else struck a lick to its cultivation.

Sam's first planting was the Irish potatoes. He bedded up an acre, dragged down the beds almost flat and planted them early in March. Next came the contest acre, and when that was finished he planted four more acres in corn, making five in all, then turned to cotton.

Next came the cane, and Sam sowed this broadcast and very thick, for he wanted to make hay of it. If the stalks grow large and stiff it doesn't make good hay.

The young farmer wound up the first round of planting by sowing the orchard in rye. His idea was to let no bit of ground lie idle, but to keep something growing on it instead of weeds.

The weed problem was a pretty hard one for Sam, so many had gone to seed on the place. But he determined that not one should make seed this year. So he was the busiest farmer in the whole community. He plowed and harrowed constantly, but it was mostly plowing, for Sam soon learned that hoeing is a mighty slow way to kill weeds and grass compared with plowing.

People passing along by the Powell place marveled at the clean, well cultivated little farm; but Sam considered other needs of the crops besides cultivation.

The soil of the place was not nearly so poor as the neighbors had said it was—not even so poor as Sam had thought. The trouble was that the surface of the ground had merely been scratched, and he had remedied this by thorough cultivation. Still the crops lacked something, and he found that each acre had certain qualities. As he studied the farm he began to see that each bit of land was strong in certain ways and weak in others.

There was no time to have soil analysis made this year, but he began to study closely the wild vegetation and trees growing about and to read the bulletins and the book he had bought on "Low Crops Grow." It wasn't an easy subject by any means. Sam read and reread the book and finally went over it slowly and studied it page by page. Pretty soon he knew nearly as much about the soil he was cultivating as any expert could have told him. Here is what he learned about soil fertility:

Acid in soil that causes crops to die and die is indicated by coral growing on the land. Acid can easily be detected also by getting a slip of blue litmus paper for a nickel at the drug store and pressing it in a ball of the soil. If it turns red there is acid. An application of lime cures this.

Crops and plants of all kinds are fed by several elements of the soil, but there are three more important than the rest—nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid.

Nitrogen forms the leaves of plants—that part of the plant body which breathes. Potash makes the trunk, stalk and fiber of plant or tree. Phosphoric acid reproduces—sets the blooms and makes abundant seed and fruit.

Sam learned these things from reading. But when he knew them, all he had to do was to look about the farm and learn more things by observation. Where trees grew or had grown well he knew that potash was plentiful. If leaves were rotish, nitrogen was abundant. If flowers formed and fell off the plants before they should he knew the soil needed phosphoric acid.

Finally the young farmer formed what he had learned into nine rules and wrote them down in the back of one of his books. Its follows:

"1. Nitrogen (or ammonia) encourages strong leaf, vine and bush growth.
"2. Potash makes firm tuber, bulb and fiber.
"3. Phosphoric acid makes blooms set and seeds and seed pods form abundantly.
"4. If the wild growth on your farm is profuse and your tomatoes and melon vines run to leaf your soil is rich in nitrogen.

Underneath the Dust Mulch He Found That the Soil Was Perfectly Wet.

"5. If trees do not thrive, onions seem soggy and tomato vines lack sturdiness of stalk the soil needs potash.
"6. If your tomatoes, melons, grain and cotton fail to set plenty of seed and fruit phosphoric acid is called for.
"7. If you expect to take from your land a crop rich in leaf, as lettuce, increase the proportion of nitrogen in your fertilizer.
"8. If potatoes or onions are desired provide plenty of potash.
"9. If abundant corn, wheat, cotton bolls, melons, peaches, strawberries or tomatoes are wanted see to the phosphoric acid."

Sam made use of what he had learned in planting and cultivating his crops. He watched them closely, and if it seemed to him that any of them were not doing well he began to hunt and study out the cause.

Although he had fertilized all of the farm to some extent before plowing, he worked manure into the furrows when he planted his cotton and tried to give everything he planted the food it demanded to do its best. He found out that one good way to apply this food was to sprinkle it on the surface of the ground around the plants and work it in gently with hoe or rake.

Sam made a top application of this kind to his cotton when it was well advanced in the summer. The soil of the contest acre had been well fertilized in the beginning, but Sam didn't want that corn to lack for any of the elements it needed to make two big, long ears to each stalk and sometimes three. He waited until it was just about ready to silk; then he went to town and bought 400 pounds of fertilizer. He had this mixed to suit himself, for he had figured out just what he thought the corn needed—so much nitrogen and so much phosphoric acid. With this fertilizer he went over each row of the acre, sprinkled it around the stalks and worked it into the soil.

Fine as the corn was before, it now showed still further improvement. In a few days it was in full silk, and it seemed to leap up on receiving the stimulating food around its roots. But

Sam wasn't through with the acre yet. Every now and then he went over it with a plow, just skimming the surface to break up the crust that commenced to form. One month it was unusually dry, and the young farmer had a chance to see the good effect of this work. His corn kept its dark green color, and by scratching down two inches, just underneath the dust mulch, he found that the soil was perfectly wet.

Fagan's corn across the fence was burning and withering in the sun. Sam climbed over the fence one day and examined the soil. He found it baked hard on top, and when he took his knife and dug a little hole he had to go nearly six inches before he found the slightest moisture.

"That shows what conserving the moisture will do," he said to himself as he went back to his field. "I've plowed this acre a good many times, but it's been easy work and didn't take long to do it, because it's in good condition. I may be mistaken, but I believe I'm going to make a lot of corn at mighty little cost on this patch."

Late in the summer, when the corn was almost made and when other farmers had long ago laid by their corn, Sam gave his contest acre a final plowing and sowed black eyed peas broadcast among it as he did so. He had done his best, and it remained to be seen whether other boys in his state could beat him.

But if Sam Powell was through with the one acre he wasn't through with work by any means. In fact, he didn't have much time to think about the contest.

PLANNING FOR A BIG NIGHT BEFORE

Program Includes a Big Bon Fire and Band Concert at the South Playgrounds.

Make it a rouser! Although the glorious Fourth falls on Sunday this year, the committee who so successfully carried out the New Year's celebration are working hard to usher in the day's celebration in a most fitting manner. Station Agent Grant of the Boston and Maine railroad has given a car load of old sleepers for the bon fire and the work of constructing the mammoth pile was commenced today. Those who desire to contribute wood and other inflammable material for the bon-fire are requested to notify Fred A. Gray, at once as the committee want to get the construction of the bon-fire out of the way as soon as possible, so that they may devote their time to the other events. It is planned to touch the big fire off at 12 o'clock Sunday night and the Portsmouth Military Band has been engaged to give a concert at the playground from 12 to 2.30 o'clock. With the boat races on the river, the horse racing at the Rockingham Park, the big parade of the Pythians, as well as other events, the Fourth should be a memorable one in this city.

The soliciting committee report that funds for carrying out the program have as yet come slowly, but hope that our merchants and citizens will contribute freely to carry out the program. A bulletin announcing the various events and time of the same is to be placed on Market Square near Grace's drug store.

Mr. R. A. Gray of the committee stated today that the committee would make public their entire program on Friday of the present week.

Our citizens should realize that the committee cannot carry out their plans without assistance and all able should take a hand to make the celebration of 1915 one to be long remembered.

Will you do your part?

BUSY DAY IN POLICE COURT

Severe Sentence Imposed in North End Liquor Case.

One of the most interesting and lengthy liquor cases in police court for several months, was heard today when Frank Letterio a North End restaurant keeper was heard on a charge of keeping malt liquor for sale. He was brought into court as the result of a raid made on Sunday last at his place of business, 273 Market street where the liquor squad found two cases and several bottles in a dog-out under the floor.

Before the court opened, Judge Gagliardi, Chief Justice, Attorney Mitchell and the four officers who conducted the search, visited Letterio's place where they viewed the underground cold storage and other parts of the premises.

During the court proceedings, Letterio claimed that all the booze found by the police was for his own personal use and that he had also ordered a keg during the week. He simply put it under the floor to keep it cool.

Officers Shannon, Murphy, Doherty and Anderson testified to the situation as they found it and that it took some time to locate the liquids under the floor. The court was of the opinion that if the booze was for the personal consumption of Letterio, it would not have been necessary for him to conceal it in the manner in which he did. The circumstances and the testimony of the police satisfied the court that there was probable cause and the following sentence was ordered: Six months in jail, $100 fine and costs of $10.15.

The respondent (through his attorney John L. Mitchell) appealed and furnished bonds in the sum of $200 for further hearing at the October term of superior court.

John Anderson, aged 21, who claims California as his home was heard on the charge of assault. Anderson was on Northwest street on Tuesday with another knight of the road, when a telephone message to the police reported that Anderson had punched a young colored lad. Officer Doherty went over to that district and when Anderson got a shunt at the cop he took it on the hot foot to the river front where he stole a boat and attempted to row to Noble's Island. The officer gave chase in another boat and landed the young hobo from the

"The evolution of the relation of woman to man has passed through two stages and is now in the third. In the earliest times woman was a strong factor in the community, but the circumstance that the men were always at war left the drudgery of work for the women in and around the home. In the later Middle Ages woman came to be looked upon as the weaker, the more spiritualized sex, needing constant protection, 'half angel and half idiot,' to whom an affectionate though often rather superficial devotion was paid in the so-called spirit of chivalry. In the modern pioneer days in various countries--Australia, South Africa, but notably in our own great West--woman has come to be looked upon as neither a drudge nor a doll. The women of the West have from the beginning taken part as comrades in the hard, rough work on the border as well as in the civilization of the border."--Frederick M. Davenport.
